DENIES HE KNEW CAR WAS STOLEN; PAID $10 FOR IT

Reaford H. Mallicote Later Wrecked Machine at Langhorne Highway

SENTENCE DEFERRED

Joseph Sismore Says He Drank To Cure A Cold

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 25.—After a jury convicted him of larceny and receiving stolen goods on one charge and receiving stolen goods in another, Reaford H. Mallicote, 43, formerly of Trenton, N. J., and Tennessee, still maintained before Judge Edward G. Biester that he did not know the 1950 high-priced car he bought for $10 was stolen.

Mallicote was convicted of buying a car for $10 Oct. 20, 1951, which had been allegedly stolen in Philadelphia, and which he wrecked at the Janney-Langhorne super highway dead-end T-intersection.

He denied that he stole two wheels, with tires mounted on them, which were taken in Morrisville from Leroy Brown.

Judge Biester deferred sentence until today.

"I am glad the jury was not misled by your silly, fantastic and ridiculous story," commented Judge Biester, who pleaded with the defendant to be honest and search his conscience and tell the truth before him and the jury which was sitting in the semi-circular row of chairs in the well of the court room.

"Between God and me I did not know the car was stolen," said the defendant with his characteristic Southern drawl.

The car was stolen from John J. Kner, Jr., Philadelphia, and identified as the wrecked vehicle Mallicote was standing nearby at the scene of the accident.

Mallicote, who pleaded "brutal" at the hands of the Langhorne State Police, was reprimanded by the Court. "That is an old story with the Court, who knows better, and you overplayed your hand

Croydon Man and Resident of Terrace Appear for Trials

CASES ARE HEARD

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 25.—Layton Snelling, 68, River road, Croydon, who pleaded guilty to shooting a tenant, Henry Hayes, at their Bensalem home, Bensalem township, through the shoulder, was given a suspended sentence by Judge Edwin H. Satterwhite.

Snelling, who has never been in any trouble in his life before, pleaded guilty to aggravated assault and battery, a. and b., and wantonly pointing and discharging a firearm.

Chief of Police of Bensalem township, George H. Rentz, who investigated the shooting, which happened at eight o'clock in the evening, November 22, 1951, as Henry Hayes was driving away in a car, testified that Hayes and Miss Lucille Coward, who resided in the defendant's house, had been quarreling.

Snelling, who said he was hunting a rabbit, testified that he was afraid of Henry Hayes and that was why he was carrying his 22 calibre rifle around with him all day.

"I said, 'Listen, Hot-Rod,' and when he didn't stop his car and talk to me I fired through the back of it," the defendant testified. There was evidence that Henry Hayes flourished a butcher-knife earlier in the day.

Henry Hayes showed a coat with a bullet hole through it and testified the bullet passed through his shoulder.

Because the defendant was in prison, here, a month, while awaiting disposition of the case, Judge Satterwhite suspended any further prison punishment, but placed the 68-year-old man on probation.

Chief Rentz said Snelling bears a good reputation in the community

13-YEAR-OLD BOY TAKEN TO DETENTION HOME AFTER HEARING; THE 6 CHARGES INCLUDE THEFT, CARRYING WEAPON, ETC.

A 13-year-old Croydon boy whose name is being withheld by Bristol Township police, was committed to the Detention Home, Doylestown, after a hearing held this morning when he was held on six charges after robbing a used car lot, being involved in a hit-and-run accident; carrying concealed weapons, etc.

According to Bristol Township Police Chief Joseph Seader, the boy is believed to have forced his way into a sales building approximately 6' x 8' at Hamm's Used Car lot, Cornwells Heights, sometime last night between nine and 12 o'clock.

It is believed he removed a pane of glass from a window, reached in and unlocked the window, placed the glass back, then took a key to a '49 two-door sedan, and a set of tags belonging to William Pascoe, Cedar avenue, Croydon, manager of the lot.

According to police, the boy then took the '49 sedan and drove to a side road near Bensalem high school, where he put the tags on the machine upside down. Then he is said to have driven the machine up Bristol Pike and over Newportville road, Bensalem Township, where he sideswiped a machine operated by George Waldron, Bath road, Bristol. Damage to Waldron's machine is estimated at $50. Damage was confined to the front and rear fenders on both machines. The 13-year-old juvenile continued on and Waldron tried to follow him but lost sight of him.

Her survivors are her husband, Walter; her parents, Joseph and Mary Tilto; a sister, Mrs. Robert Cohoon; and two brothers, Anthony and Joseph Tilto.

ENGINEERING IS SAVING MANY LIVES

This morning at eight o'clock, the juvenile was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Rene Tritschler, Croydon Manor, and held for the next term of juvenile court at Doylestown on charges of burglary, larceny and receiving stolen goods; hit and run; driving without an operator's license; carrying a 12" stiletto in his belt underneath his jacket.

It is reported he is on a year's probation following a trial in Doylestown in the judges chamber of Juvenile Court about a month ago.

GRATIFYING RESULTS

Traffic engineering "know-how" is saving hundreds of lives and preventing thousands of injuries annually, but even greater contributions to highway safety lie in the future when its scientific approach to the growing automobile accident problem will be better understood and appreciated by the public in the communities and states it serves, according to the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies.

A 12-year study embracing 80 danger spots in all parts of the country, which was completed recently by the Association, has revealed some outstanding results in accident prevention through traffic engineering. Some significant findings were that both fatal accidents and injury mishaps were reduced nearly two-thirds by the application of modern traffic engineering techniques at dangerous intersections and locations, both urban and rural, which had taken extremely heavy tolls of dead and injured.

The accident experience reported

TROUBLESOME CROP

A study just released by the Senate Labor subcommittee indicates that in another eight years approximately 1,500,000 of the more than 9,000,000 people now working on farms will be without jobs because of new machines and new techniques. By 1970 the number of farm DPs is expected to grow to 3,500,000.

The study makes the comment that while the trend still promises plenty in the form of food and fiber for all, there are economic and social shifts that will become worrisome problems in their own right. Just what this means in terms of manpower is perhaps best illustrated by these figures: Nowadays, one farm worker produces enough to feed himself and 15 others. Twenty years ago he could feed himself and 10 others. Fifty years ago one man fed seven.

The impact of technology, and particularly agricultural chemistry, on production has been enormous. The smallest farm operator knows the advantages of feeding his stock, hogs and chickens the balanced feeds—the latest have antibiotics added to the formulas—that are available to him at moderate prices.

One of the most exciting science stories of modern times can be found in the revolution that chemistry has brought about down on the farm. Results of a mesquite control program in the course of which seven Texas counties chipped in to have an 84,000-acre area sprayed from the air with a new liquid chemical are related.

Inroads made against this thorny bush, a traditional cattle range pest, it is stated, will permit the raising of more than 2,200 additional head of cattle in the area and will increase the earning power of the acreage by $200,000 in a year's period. There are many other examples just as exciting.

KEEPING "WETBACKS" OUT

More than 1,000,000 Mexicans already are believed to be illegally in this country. Because a treaty with Mexico designed to stop such migrations was about to expire, the Senate passed what is destined to be a largely futile measure, even if the House concurs. On this side of the Rio Grande are farmers eager to get Mexican labor at a price which seems affluence to the workers compared with what they can get at home.

But while the Senate was about to punish by fine and imprisonment those who made a business of smuggling Mexicans in, principally by wading or swimming the river, from which they get the name of "wetbacks," and to punish also those who conceal them until they can be distributed to jobs, the Senate balked at penalizing farmers who have "reasonable grounds for belief" that their seasonal workers have not been passed by immigration officials. This it did by a record vote of 69 to 11.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"By FULTON LEWIS, JR.
(Copyright, 1952,
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.

Senator Robert A. Taft, despite pressure from "me-too" Republicans, continues to be candid with American voters regarding his opposition to large segments of the Administration's foreign policy.

One of Taft's recent blasts occurred on the Senate floor, when he favored amending the North Atlantic Treaty Organization so that President Truman would be restricted legally from sending U.S. troops into foreign areas that would involve this nation in war.

The Senate never voted on the issue, although it is conceded that the amendment would have been defeated had a vote been taken. The point Taft made, however, was not whether the Senate majority agreed with him, but that he thinks the same way now while running for the Republican nomination as he does while serving in the Senate as just another GOP member.

This consistency struck a number of presidential-minded Republicans, and a great many Democrats, as unusual. Most of them are accustomed to backing and filling on major issues while involved in a political campaign. Taft, however, will stand on his voting record as a Senator in his race to convince Republicans he should be their presidential nominee.

Taft has long called for many changes, and still does. This gives Republican voters a direct choice. Taft says he will fight to curb the President's power to make war at will, without consulting Congress. What will Eisenhower do? We haven't heard directly, but we know from the NATO argument recently in the Senate that pro-Eisenhower Republicans like it the way it is, apparently even up to and including Korea, where the best the Administration can do is puff up imaginary progress at truce talks while superior U.S. manpower is chewed to bits by Communist gunmen.

Connally, whose aging irritation with the Washington press corps gets more noticeable every day, now warns the nation in general—and Texans in particular—of the dangers of huge foreign aid spending, unnecessary foreign entanglements, and Communism in general. Until he discovered he was in serious political trouble, Connally never appeared to give the subjects a thought beyond reading what the White House or State Department sent to his office.

Connally, of course, is not a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. Some Texans hardly consider him the Democratic candidate for the Senate front runner, as although he is running for that nomination. But Connally and Taft are of comparable political stature in the Senate, insofar as party prerogatives are concerned. So an examination of their behavior is enlightening.

Less than a year and a half ago, Taft won re-election as a Senator by a huge majority, after touring his state day and night, talking to friends and political foes alike. There is a growing conviction in Washington now that Connally will be a factor in the next election.

The speeches were brief, but each one addressing the assemblage had compliments for the corps which has been highly acclaimed wherever it has appeared. Burgess L. Johnson, Hetherington, Sr., paid tribute to the corps leader, Commander Arthur Straccio, who claims "spends eight days a week working for the corps." "This is the first at each location, before and after engineering changes were made to remove the causes of fatalities and injuries, was studied closely over sufficient periods by a local traffic engineer, who reported directly to the Association. Before the traffic engineers went to work there had been 170 fatal accidents at the 80 locations studied. After the engineering projects were finished the toll at "death corners" and other dangerous city and rural locations surveyed dropped to 60 fatal accidents, a decline of 65 per cent, according to Robert H. Harleston, Jr., the Association's traffic engineer.

Injury accidents totaled 1,000 before engineering techniques were applied. They were reduced to 350, representing a 65 per cent reduction. Property damage accidents dropped 43 per cent, from 4,600 to 2,600. Mr. Harleston conservatively estimated that the saving in direct economic costs of accidents amounted to more than $3,000,000 in the periods studied. If the cumulative records of these traffic engineering examples were brought up to date, he declared, the totals of lives saved, injuries prevented and damage averted would be far greater.

"The defendant kept on holding me by the back of the shirt, and neck, told me how to drive until we came to a wooded section, where he dragged me out and told me to walk ahead or he would kill me," said Flannery.

Abandoned in the dark woodland, Flannery stumbled about until, about 3:30 in the morning, he walked into the office of the store of Charles G. Roach, 51, Langhorne. Roach admitted the office door had been left unlocked and the burglar alarm not hooked up by his son who forgot to lock the door.

Flannery was using the telephone and calling his wife for help when Roach heard the phone ring in his house and he and his son appeared on the scene with a shotgun to see who was robbing their store.

Flanner, the hitch-hiker, is charged with nine counts, involving robbery, assault with intent to rob and larceny. Flannery's car was recovered by the police later.

Judge Satterthwaite ordered the jury, which is being held over from the first week, to return today to resume the trial.

attack at Pearl Harbor the Americans developed Judo, which is a more advanced version of it. He explained that fists and chop blows cause more damage than the double fist. He showed the right and wrong way to hold the stick in night club holdups, and the effect of same. He demonstrated how to break a strangle-hold, the use of leverage, and again the use of the vital thumb and body holds; also showed how to disarm a man—the first thing being to get one's own body out of range of fire.

Robert Reed was the guest of Clinton Greenlee, and 12 members of the safety patrol of Council Rock school were guests of the club and greatly enjoyed the demonstration. Members of the patrol attending included John Boerke, David Downs, Richard Ely, Frank Fabian, John Jackson, Reitt Johnson, James Longstreet, Ronald McDonough, Gilbert Morris, James Steele, Merritt Whiteside, Alfred Wright, F. God a Spirit, man but dust; Yet His temple we. Renew our spirits, and our hearts; That like Thee we be. In our worship, sincere, holy, In our conduct, meek and lowly; By Thy Spirit guided wholly; Thy true image, we. Amen.

Asserting that if it weren't for his wife and seven children he would send him to jail, Judge Edward G. Biester while sentencing Robert Duffield, 38, formerly of 613 Court C, Bristol Terrace, No. 2, now of Philadelphia, warned him and said: "If we find out that you drank one glass of beer while on probation you will be brought back and go to prison here."

Duffield, who said he earns $70 a week, testified he moved from Bristol Terrace to Philadelphia to get away from his "drinking

friends." Judge Biester sentenced him to pay the costs of prosecution, a $10 fine and suspended a prison sentence of one year, placing him on probation. The costs of prosecution amounted to $60.

Officer Bentley Chapin, of the Bristol Township Police, testified that on Nov. 22, 1951, the defendant broke the windows in his Bristol Terrace II. house.

Dominick Gilardi, 615 Court C, Bristol Terrace II, testified the defendant came over to his house, tried to break in, and smashed windows in the door.

"He threatened to kill me," said Gilardi.

Duffield, who admitted that Gilardi never made any trouble for him, was apprehended about a week after his rampage. Officer Chapin and another officer attempted to get him out of his house with tear gas, but failed. Duffield threatened to shoot them if they came into his living room.

"You are the type who should never take one drink because you don't know how to act," said the Court. Officer Chapin said they were called to the defendant's home numerous times when he began "breaking things up after drinking."

"He threatened to kill me," said Gilardi.

Duffield, who admitted that Gilardi never made any trouble for him, was apprehended about a week after his rampage. Officer Chapin and another officer attempted to get him out of his house with tear gas, but failed. Duffield threatened students in the uses and functions of banking institutions.

Raymond W. Lloyd, Area Supervisor of Agricultural Education for Bucks, Montgomery and Lehigh counties, discussed the use of motion pictures in public schools for educational purposes. He called attention to the catalogue of films which describes the various films available for use in class rooms and is in the process of distribution to all teachers in Bucks County. He pointed out that over 200 films are presently in the library and valued in excess of $25,000. The film library is supported by dues paid by member schools and organizations such as The Bucks County Bankers Association.

in the Lingayen Gulf is being blamed on "mermaids." The young man was said to have drowned in "shallow waters," and old residents claimed that "mermaids" have been causing yearly accidents in the gulf in the same spot where the body was found.

EXPECT PLENTY OF ACTION IN GAME HERE TONIGHT

Plenty of action is expected on the Goodwill Hose Company court tonight as two important tilts of the Bristol Basketball League will be played starting at 7:30 o'clock.

In the opener, the Hibernians will clash with Rohm & Haas. The Hiboes have a chance to increase their margin over the Rohm & Haas boys with a triumph. The chemical mixers will drop into third place if beaten.

Both the Hiboes and Rohm & Haas suffered defeats last week. Franklin beat the Hibes while Hilltop handed the Maple Beach aggregation their third defeat in their last four games. Both teams are expected to be "up" for tonight's games.

A loss for the Hibernians will throw the circuit into a turmoil as it will mean that the first three teams in the loop will have lost four games with the next three teams having lost five tilts.

Manager Harkins intends to start Bill Burr, Joe Mulligan, Charlie Downs, Joe Roe, and Charlie Simons while Angie Everett, Nick Spadaccino, Walt Zook, Pat Carnavale, and Bill Butz will be the starting five for Rohm & Haas.

Still clinging to its chances of getting a playoff spot, Franklin will seek its fifth win of the season as it meets the Profy team. Profy's is one of the three teams tied for fourth spot with Franklin one game behind.

Grant Eckert, Bill Mobley, Tony Palumbo, Stan Lelinski, and Howard Keys will start for Franklin with Jim Egli, Al Burton, Joe Natoli, Ham Konefal, and Bill Ennis starting for Profy's.

BRIGHTENING Up the BEDROOM

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

IT'S all right to be a copy cat when it comes to decorating. In fact, sometimes it's a good plan to look at model rooms designed by professionals and pick up some ideas for your own home.

If you really study decorator rooms you'll discover it's the little touches that make them outstanding.

Take bedrooms, for example. Some people think a bed, bureau, spread and drapes are all that's needed. It takes more than that, however. It takes some little touches. Four model bedrooms we saw recently illustrate this point nicely.

One was a roomful of roses. Feminine without being frilly, it featured matching bedspread and draperies patterned with filligree circles with roses for centers. Made of sturdy, long-lasting jacquard weave cotton, the spread top in green on white was edged with a white snowball fringe. A dust ruff in green carried out the scheme.

The little touches included a floral print hung over the bed, two graceful Provincial lamps, a vase of roses on the dressing table and a wooden valance at the window that was shaped to carry out the curved French Provincial line of the furniture.

Another bedroom, designed for the young man of the house, was trim and tailored with a cactus-strewn bedspread and drapery ensemble. Splattered linoleum provided a colorful and very practical floor covering. Of particular interest here was the headboard, easily made with knotty pine. Knotty pine wall covering and a corner bookcase set atop a cabinet carried out the motif. As a final touch, a wall lamp was attached to the side of the bookcase to provide light for reading in bed.

In the modern manner, a

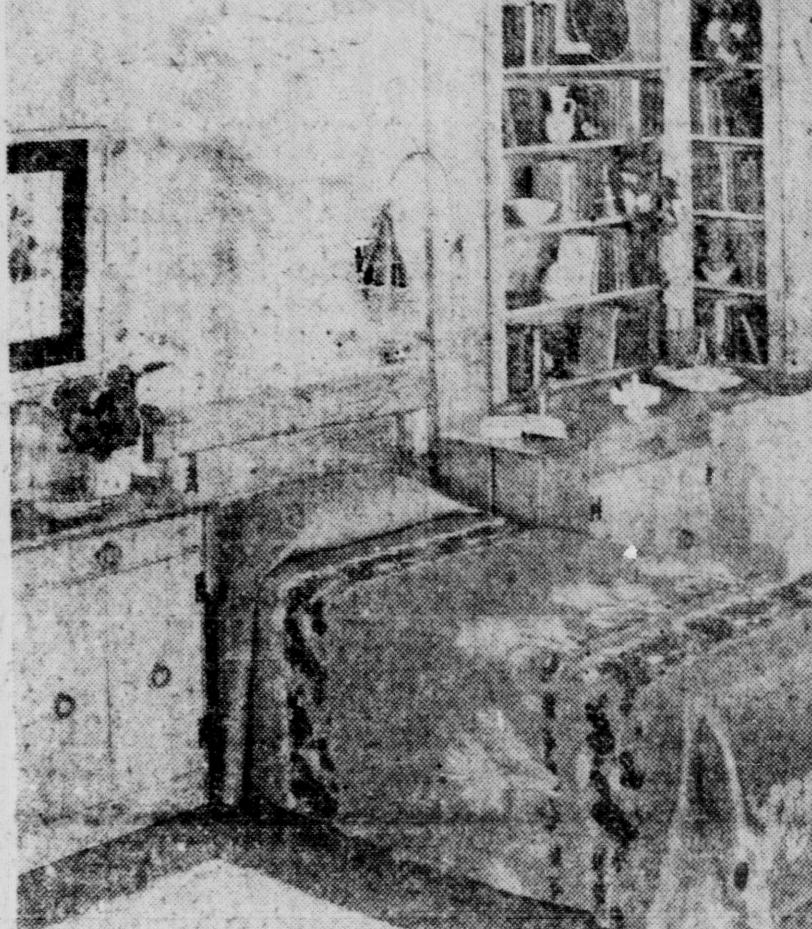

WHAT MAKES THIS BEDROOM ATTRACTIVE? It's a number of things, including the green and white color scheme set by the bedspread and draperies and the decorative cornices cut in graceful curves.

Mr. and Mrs. bedroom was done in a severely striking navy and white color scheme. The simple spread, patterned with lacey white squares on a navy ground, matched draperies that framed a window hung with sheer white curtains. A comfortable boudoir chair next to an occasional table provided a place for some midnight book-browsing. Next to the bed, a table with a pull-out shelf furnished a spot to put a snack or a cigarette and ash tray. Little touches like these made it a room where you could sleep or relax.

Cheerful and cozy, another bedroom, in early American style featured a bay window attractively draped with three pairs of draperies—two pairs on the middle window, half a pair for each of the end windows. The draperies matched a washable cotton spread patterned with soft colored dots and trimmed with snowball fringe. A cozy tea table and Grandma's comfortable rocking chair were near the windows. Two framed silhouettes were hung above the bed. On either side, mirrored reflectors and candles provided added wall decoration.

In all these rooms, decorating expenses were modest. The most expensive spread cost no more than ten dollars. What turned the trick, and made the rooms unusual were color coordination and those little touches!

ONE LOOK WILL TELL YOU that this is a boy's room. The knotty pine headboard, bookcases and cabinets have masculine charm. A cactus-strewn spread and drapery set seem just right to go with them.

DENIES HE KNEW CAR WAS STOLEN; PAID $10 FOR IT

Reford H. Mallicote Later Wrecked Machine at Langhorne Highway

SENTENCE DEFERRED

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 25.—After a jury convicted him of larceny and receiving stolen goods on one charge and receiving stolen goods in another, Reford H. Mallicote, 43, formerly of Trenton, N. J., and Tennessee, still maintained before Judge Edward G. Biester that he did not know the 1950 high-priced car he bought for $10 was stolen.

Mallicote was convicted of buying a car for $10 Oct. 29, 1951, which had been allegedly stolen in Philadelphia, and which he wrecked at the Janney-Langhorne super highway dead-end T-intersection.

He denied that he stole two wheels, with tires mounted on them, which were taken in Morrisville from Leroy Brown.

Judge Biester deferred sentence until today.

"I am glad the jury was not misled by your silly, fantastic and ridiculous story," commented Judge Biester, who pleaded with the defendant to be honest and search his conscience and tell the truth before him and the jury which was sitting in the semi-circular row of chairs in the well of the court room.

"Between God and me I did not know the car was stolen," said the defendant with his characteristic Southern drawl.

The car was stolen from John J. Knerr, Jr., Philadelphia, and identified as the wrecked vehicle Mallicote was standing nearby at the scene of the accident.

Mallicote, who pleaded "brutality" at the hands of the Langhorne State Police, was reprimanded by the Court. "That is an old story with the Court, who knows better, and you overplayed your hand."

Croydon Man and Resident of Terrace Appear for Trials

CASES ARE HEARD

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 25.—Layton Snelling, 68, River road, Croydon, who pleaded guilty to shooting a tenant, Henry Hayes, at their Bridgewater home, Bensalem township, through the shoulder, was given a suspended sentence by Judge Edwin H. Satterthwaite.

Snelling, who has never been in any trouble in his life before, pleaded guilty to aggravated assault and battery, a. and b., and wantonly pointing and discharging a firearm. Chief of Police of Bensalem township, George H. Rentz, who investigated the shooting, which happened at eight o'clock in the evening, November 22, 1951, as Henry Hayes was driving away in a car, testified that Hayes and Miss Lucille Coward, who resided in the defendant's house, had been quarreling.

Snelling, who said he was out hunting a rabbit, testified that he was afraid of Henry Hayes and that was why he was carrying his 22 calibre rifle around with him all day.

I said, "Listen, Hot-Rod," and when he didn't stop his car and talk to me I fired through the back of it," the defendant testified. There was evidence that Henry Hayes flourished a butcher-knife earlier in the day.

Henry Hayes showed a coat with a bullet hole through it and testified the bullet passed through his shoulder.

Because the defendant was in prison, here a month, while awaiting disposition of the case, Judge Satterthwaite suspended any further prison punishment, but placed the 68-year-old man on probation.

Chief Rentz said Snelling bears a good reputation in the community.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

The Western Big Three foreign ministers expect to announce tomorrow full and final agreement with Bonn on ending West German occupation.

The NATO Council underlined the importance of strategic air power in Western Europe's defense by expanding General Eisenhower's powers to include Morocco and Tunisia, now being developed with a string of air bases. All but 10 per cent of the money needed to construct NATO's airfields and other permanent installations in the compacted zones has been promised and United States sources were confident yesterday that the balance would be pledged without delay. A drastic revision in United States military aid methods was forecast in view of the progress toward a European army.

Economic difficulties associated with Western Europe's rearming continued to plague France. Premier Faure said most taxes would be increased 15 per cent instead of 10 per cent, and he would be willing to make it a matter of confidence. A United Nations report said that Europe's coal shortage could prevent fulfillment of production goals.

TROUBLESOME CROP

A study just released by the Senate Labor subcommittee indicates that in another eight years approximately 1,500,000 of the more than 9,000,000 people now working on farms will be without jobs because of new machines and new techniques. By 1970 the number of farm DPs is expected to grow to 3,500,000.

The study makes the comment that while the trend still promises plenty in the form of food and fiber for all, there are economic and social shifts that will become worrisome problems in their own right. Just what this means in terms of manpower is perhaps best illustrated by these figures: Nowadays, one farm worker produces enough to feed himself and 15 others. Twenty years ago he could feed himself and 10 others. Fifty years ago one man fed seven.

The impact of technology, and particularly agricultural chemistry, on production has been enormous. The smallest farm operator knows the advantages of feeding his stock, hogs and chickens the balanced feeds—the latest have antibiotics added to the formulas—that are available to him at moderate prices.

One of the most exciting science stories of modern times can be found in the revolution that chemistry has brought about down on the farm. Results of a mesquite control program in the course of which seven Texas counties chipped in to have an 84,000-acre area sprayed from the air with a new liquid chemical are related.

Inroads made against this thorny bush, a traditional cattle range pest, it is stated, will permit the raising of more than 2,200 additional head of cattle in the area and will increase the earning power of the acreage by $200,000 in a year's period. There are many other examples just as exciting.

KEEPING "WETBACKS" OUT

More than 1,000,000 Mexicans already are believed to be illegally in this country. Because a treaty with Mexico designed to stop such migrations was about to expire, the Senate passed what is destined to be a largely futile measure, even if the House concurs. On this side of the Rio Grande are farmers eager to get Mexican labor at a price which seems affluence to the workers compared with what they can get at home.

But while the Senate was about to punish by fine and imprisonment those who made a business of smuggling Mexicans in, principally by wading or swimming the river, from which they get the name of "wetbacks," and to punish also those who conceal them until they can be distributed to jobs, the Senate balked at penalizing farmers who have "reasonable grounds for belief" that their seasonal workers have not been passed by immigration officials. This it did by a record vote of 69 to 11.

Owing to the breaks in the banks of the canal, caused by the recent flood, navigation has been suspended between Bristol and Mauch Chunk for the season.

Edgar Smith and Miss Louella Hermann were married last evening by the Rev. Theodore Stevens at the Methodist parsonage. After a wedding tour, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will sail on November 3, for Colon, Isthmus of Panama, where Mr. Smith is employed in the office of the Panama Railroad Company.

Dr. E. J. Groom and Walter F. Leedom, executors of the estate of the late Anna M. Brown, have sold to the Superior Enameling Process Company the remainder of the real estate tract at Edgely belonging to the estate. The entire property which is now owned by the company comprises sixty-two acres, a portion of which along the railroad was recently sold to the company, upon which was erected a factory for making enamel leather. A. F. Yeutter, of Bristol, is a member of the firm. The price paid for the entire property, which extends to the river, including the dwelling, was eleven thousand dollars. Mrs. Brown willed the most of her wealth to the Old Gentlemen's Home at West Philadelphia, and the Old Ladies' Home at Wissington.

At a meeting of the ladies of the Presbyterian Church of Bristol, held on Wednesday evening of last week, the Pastor's Aid Society was disbanded and a new organization perfected under the title of the Ladies' Union, combining the membership of the Aid Society and the Helping Hand Society, which heretofore existed as separate bodies. Complete harmony was effected by choosing for officers of the new organization member of each of the old societies. The vote for reorganization was unanimous. The following were elected officers of the Ladies' Union: Mrs. Charles E. Burns, president; Mrs. Stacy B. Purcell, first vice-president; Miss Lizzie Crichton, 2nd vice-president; Miss Bertha Hetherington, secretary; Mrs. John Saylor, treasurer.

A meeting of the directors of the Delaware Bridge Company was held at New Hope on Thursday afternoon to discuss plans for building another bridge to replace the one destroyed by the flood. It was decided to begin work as soon as possible. The bridge will have a steel superstructure and will be made several feet higher than the old one was. It will be uncovered. Until the completion of the bridge a steam launch will convey passengers across and a ferry will carry wagons. The launch will be brought up the river in a day or so.

Newtown township farmers, tired of travelling over mud roads, met in their election room at Frank B. Wentworth's store on Thursday night and organized a good roads association with the following officers, who were elected by acclamation: President, Charles E. Pugh; vice-president, Walter Wright and John Roberts; secretaries, Frank B. Wentworth and Cornelius VanHorn; treasurer, George Betts. A committee of five, consisting of Rudolph Heston, Cornelius VanHorn, James T. Keyser, Walter Buckman and Charles Watson, was appointed to ascertain the views of the voters of the township upon the good roads question. The association intends to get the subject sufficiently before the voters for their consideration at the February election. It is hoped to bond the township in order to obtain the necessary funds for road improvements.

Joseph Seader reports that nine cars have been stolen in the past two weeks in N. E. Philadelphia, and five in Bristol borough.

Chief of Bensalem Township police George Rentz also states most of the cars are stolen in Philadelphia. However, he claims, that cars stolen outside that city are abandoned in Philadelphia.

A special squad of Pennsylvania state police from Langhorne barracks, aided by other police officials of the general area, are conducting a full investigation into the club.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.
(Copyright, 1952,
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.— Senator Robert A. Taft, despite pressure from "me-too" Republicans, continues to be candid with American voters regarding his opposition to large segments of the Administration's foreign policy.

One of Taft's recent blasts occurred on the Senate floor, when he favored amending the North Atlantic Treaty Organization so that President Truman would be restricted legally from sending U. S. troops into foreign areas that would involve this nation in war.

The Senate never voted on the issue, although it is conceded that the amendment would have been defeated had a vote been taken. The point Taft made, however, was not whether the Senate majority agreed with him, but that he thinks the same way now while running for the Republican nomination as he does while serving in the Senate as just another GOP member.

This consistency struck a number of presidential-minded Republicans, and a great many Democrats, as unusual. Most of them are accustomed to backing and filling on major issues while involved in a political campaign. Taft, however, will stand on his voting record as a Senator in his race to convince Republicans he should be their presidential nominee.

There is a close parallel to Taft's actions involving another long-time member of the U. S. Senate. While Taft sticks to his convictions, Senator Tom Connally, the Texas Democrat and chief foreign policy spokesman for the administration, is gyrating faster than a pinwheel in relation to his voting record.

Connally, whose aging irritation with the Washington press corps gets more noticeable every day, now warns the nation in general—and Texas voters in particular—of the dangers of huge foreign aid spending, unnecessary foreign entanglements, and Communism in general. Until he discovered he was in serious political trouble, Connally never appeared to give the subjects a thought beyond reading what the White House or State Department sent to his office.

Connally, of course, is not a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. Some Texans hardly consider him the Democratic candidate for the Senate from Texas as, although he is running for that nomination. But Connally and Taft are of comparable political stature in the Senate, insofar as party prerogatives are concerned. So an examination of their behavior is enlightening.

Less than a year and a half ago, Taft won re-election as a Senator by a huge majority, after touring his state day and night, talking to friends and political foes alike. There is a growing conviction in Washington now that Connally will be addressing the assemblage had compliments for the corps which has been highly acclaimed wherever it has appeared. Burgess I. Johnston Hetherington Sr. paid tribute to the corps leader, Commander Arthur Straccio, who he claims "spends eight days a week working for the corps." "This is the first dinner at which I have not served as toastmaster," Mr. Hetherington informed, "and I hope Lawrence McCoy spends the next 26 years serving as toastmaster." After wishing the Bracken Post and the visiting corps good luck, Burgess Hetherington stated that there were gathered for the occasion "representatives of the most outstanding junior corps in the United States."

The boys and girls roundly applauded "Chuck" Bednerak, Philadelphia, all "pro" center this year for the Philadelphia Eagles, and all-American center in 1947-1948. Bednerak's advice to the young folks was: "Believe in God, say your prayers, listen to your mothers and fathers," adding: "As time goes on you'll be football players." His prediction that the Eagles will have a better team next year was approved by much hand-clapping.

Another speaker was Maurice Beiderman, member of New York State American Legion Americanism committee, and member of the Levitt organization, builders of Levittown. "I advisedly call these young folks junior members of the Chamber of Commerce for they have carried the fame of Bristol the length and breadth of this land... I didn't know much about Bristol until I attended the national convention of the American Legion in New York when Bracken Post corps came out second in the national contest." He reminded that the corps' fame has spread to every village and hamlet, and congratulated not only the post and corps personnel, but Bristol as a whole for "vision in sponsoring such a grand enterprise." When he informed of plans for baseball diamonds, handball courts, swimming pools, arena for summer concerts and the like at Levittown and added "you will be invited to enjoy them" he was met with rounds of applause. "I am glad of the opportunity to be a neighbor and to be in your midst, and wish your corps success on success."

Charles Naber, Union City, N. J., one of the top judges in American Drum & Bugle Corps Judges Association, recalled judging Bracken Corps many times. "This year has been one of the finest years that you kids have put on the field," he remarked. "You have done a tremendous job. Your percussion group has improved greatly." After mentioning that huge sums have been spent on the corps he brought to mind the hours of work on the part of the leaders, and bespoke the "faith of those who 'herd' these young folks to Florida and other places.... They were on their good behaviour, and you can be proud of them."

Praise was given the corps in these words by Michael Petrone, director of St. Vincent's Cadet Corps, Bayonne, N. J. (national champions): "We have always admired Bracken Corps members. They are good sportsmen."

Corps Commander Straccio presented awards to 16 of the youths. He reminded that "It is a tough job when you have to pick a few girls and boys out of 100 when all have worked hard." He spoke of how the folks of Bristol backed the corps when $8,000 was required for the trip to Miami. To the following cadets he presented bronze medals, with two bugles and a drum super-imposed on each: Wayne

Bloodgood, Joseph Cavanaugh, Louis Misera, Thomas Antonelli, Joseph Capazzi, Kenneth Orr, Charles Murray, Marino Capazzi, Angelo LaPolla, Angelo D'Uva, Louis Marini, Joseph Connare, Marlan Petro, Dolores D'Alfonso, Josephine Tosti, Florence Taylor.

Samuel and Gene Wingrade; John Dowlon, national champion individual drummer of the V. F. W., who writes musical scores for the corps and instructs the group; Mrs. Dowlon.

Representatives of other corps invited to stand were: Osmund, Yearsley, McCall, of Phila.; Upper Darby; St. Vincent's of Bayonne, N. J.; Nuss-O'Hara-Todd, of Norristown; West Reading Police Cadets, Tri-Community Corps (Newton and U. Marple Twp.).

Telegrams of congratulations was read from the "Ad" Post Grenadiers, of Chicago, Ill.; and telegram of regret from Gov. John S. Fine, who stated he was unable to accept invitation to attend the function.

The menu: Fresh fruit cup, hearts of celery, queen olives, snapper soup, dinner rolls, saltines, butter, egg-nog sherbet, roast young turkey, English filling, cranberry sauce, white potato croquette, fresh peas, lettuce and tomato salad with French dressing, ice cream, fancy cakes, coffee, salted nuts and mints.

at each location, before and after engineering changes were made to remove the causes of fatalities and injuries, was studied closely over sufficient periods by a local traffic engineer who reported directly to the Association. Before the traffic engineers went to work there had been 170 fatal accidents at the 80 locations studied. After the engineering projects were finished the toll at "death corners" and other dangerous city and rural locations surveyed dropped to 60 fatal accidents, a decline of 65 per cent, according to Robert H. Harleston, Jr., the Association's traffic engineer.

Injury accidents totaled 1,000 before engineering techniques were applied. They were reduced to 350, representing a 65 per cent reduction. Property damage accidents dropped 43 per cent, from 4,600 to 2,600. Mr. Harleston conservatively estimated that the saving in direct economic costs of accidents amounted to more than $3,000,000 in the periods studied. If the cumulative records of these traffic engineering examples were brought up to date, he declared, the totals of lives saved, injuries prevented and damage averted would be far greater.

"The majority of Americans are unaware, I believe, of the many ways that trained traffic engineers serve the cause of highway safety by eliminating the causes of accidents," said Mr. Harleston. "Most people regard them—if they ever heard about them at all—as engineers who install signs, signals and markings. However, the traffic engineer's work goes much deeper. He scientifically designs highways, intersections, cloverleafs, traffic circles and curves, and recommends speed zoning at locations he studies and finds unsafe.

"Some traffic engineering projects are costly, but not in relation to the results achieved. There are many, however, in which only a few dollars are expended to bring dramatic savings in lives, injuries and property damage, not to mention time saved by untangling traffic congestion. Examples where small expenditures brought big savings are numerous. One project at a rural road junction in Pennsylvania, costing only $188, reduced a toll of seven deaths and 11 injuries in nine accidents within 21 months to only three accidents in a similar period afterward. And in these three accidents, one was an intoxicated driver, one was unlicensed and the third driver skidded on an icy road. Eight lives were saved in six years by another project near Dallas, Texas, costing $1,250, at an intersection where eight persons had been killed in collisions and two other accidents had occurred in three years. The only accident in the after period was a minor one involving a drunken driver."

Joseph Sismore, 56, 1434 West Cheltenham avenue, Philadelphia, who pleaded guilty to drunken driving and testified he took several "shots" to cure a cold, was sentenced by Judge Edwin H. Satterwhite to pay a $200 fine and the costs of prosecution.

Officer Ernest Nuskey, of the Bristol Township Police, arrested the defendant, a Falls township steel plant worker, Jan. 14, after his car collided with a traffic semaphor.

The defendant told the Court he had a heavy cold, and had been taking cold tablets and took several shots. "I must have blacked out," he testified.

Handing in his operator's license, he remarked to the Court: "I will never drive a car again."

James R. Flannery, 49, Langhorne accountant, testified how a hitch-hiker, Leroy Flanner, Wilmington, Del., a Negro, got into his car Oct. 24, 1951, rode with him several miles and then said, "Here's where I turn out to go to my home," grabbed Flannery by the collar and said, "Drive on, you so and so."

Flannery, who admitted he had several drinks, said he got into his car late at night in Morrisville. He was about to start when the defendant opened the door and got in beside him in the front seat.

"We lived in Fallington at that time," testified Flannery, who said that when he informed the defendant he was turning off the highway to go home he felt "fingers being put down his shirt collar."

The defendant kept on holding me by the back of the shirt, and neck, told me how to drive until we came to a wooded section, where he dragged me out and told me to walk ahead or he would kill me," said Flannery.

Abandoned in the dark woodland, Flannery stumbled about until about 3:30 in the morning, he walked into the office of the store of Charles G. Roach, 51, Langhorne. Roach admitted the office door had been left unlocked and the burglar alarm not hooked up by his son who forgot to lock the door.

Flannery was using the telephone and calling his wife for help when Roach heard the phone ring in his house and he and his son appeared on the scene with a shotgun to see what was robbing their store.

Flamer, the hitch-hiker, is charged with nine counts, involving robbery, assault with intent to rob and larceny. Flannery's car was recovered by the police later.

Judge Satterwhite ordered the jury, which is being held over from the first week, to return today to resume the trial.

God is Spirit: and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth. (John 4:24).

O God, great and wonderful, we cannot see Thee, for Thou art Spirit. We thank Thee that Thou hast revealed Thyself, that we may know and worship Thee. Let Thy Spirit dwell in us, to guide us in our devotions and lives. Amen.

God a Spirit, man but dust;
Yet His temple we.
Renew our spirits, and our hearts;
That like Thee we be.
In our worship, sincere, holy,
In our conduct, meek and lowly;
By Thy Spirit guided wholly;
Thy true image, we. Amen.

Two Local Cases Are Before Court and that he has moved from Bridgewater road to River road, near Croydon.

Asserting that if it weren't for his wife and seven children he would send him to jail, Judge Edward G. Biester while sentencing Robert Duffield, 38, formerly of 613 Court C, Bristol Terrace, No. 2, now of Philadelphia, warned him and said: "If we find out that you drank one glass of beer while on probation you will be brought back and go to prison here."

Duffield, who said he earns $70 a week, testified he moved from Bristol Terrace to Philadelphia to get away from his "drinking

friends." Judge Biester sentenced him to pay the costs of prosecution, a $10 fine and suspended a prison sentence of one year, placing him on probation. The costs of prosecution amounted to $60.

Officer Bentley Chapin, of the Bristol Township Police, testified that on Nov. 22, 1951, the defendant broke the windows in his Bristol Terrace II house.

Dominick Giardi, 615 Court C, Bristol Terrace II, testified the defendant came over to his house, tried to break in, and smashed windows in the door.

"He threatened to kill me," said Giardi.

Duffield, who admitted that Giardi never made any trouble for him, was apprehended about a week after his rampage. Officer Chapin and another officer attempted to get him out of his house with tear gas, but failed. Duffield threatened to shoot them if they came into his living room.

"You are the type who should never take one drink because you don't know how to act," said the Court. Officer Chapin said they were called to the defendant's home numerous times when he began "breaking things up after drinking."

use in the high schools of Bucks County. To date four films have been made available to the County Film Library which are specifically designed to instruct high school students in the uses and functions of banking institutions.

Raymond W. Lloyd, Area Supervisor of Agricultural Education for Bucks, Montgomery and Lehigh counties, discussed the use of motion pictures in public schools for educational purposes. He called attention to the catalogue of films which describes the various films available for use in class rooms and is in the process of distribution to all teachers in Bucks County. He pointed out that over 200 films are presently in the library and valued in excess of $25,000. The film library is supported by dues paid by member schools and organizations such as The Bucks County Bankers Association.

EXPECT PLENTY OF ACTION IN GAME HERE TONIGHT

Plenty of action is expected on the Goodwill Hose Company court tonight as two important tilts of the Bristol Basketball League will be played starting at 7:30 o'clock.

In the opener, the Hibernians will clash with Rohm & Haas. The Hiboes have a chance to increase their margin over the Rohm & Haas boys with a triumph. The chemical mixers will drop into third place if beaten.

Both the Hiboes and Rohm & Haas suffered defeats last week. Franklin beat the Hibes while Hilltop handed the Maple Beach aggregation their third defeat in their last four games. Both teams are expected to be "up" for tonight's games.

A loss for the Hibernians will throw the circuit into a turmoil as it will mean that the first three teams in the loop will have lost four games with the next three teams having lost five tilts.

Manager Harkins intends to start Bill Burr, Joe Mulligan, Charlie Downs, Joe Roe, and Charlie Simons while Augie Everett, Nick Spadaccino, Walt Zook, Pat Carnavale, and Bill Butz will be the starting five for Rohm & Haas.

Still clinging to its chances of getting a playoff spot, Franklin will seek its fifth win of the season as it meets the Profy team. Profy's is one of the three teams tied for fourth spot with Franklin one game behind.

Grant Eckert, Bill Mobley, Tony Palumbo, Stan Lelinski, and Howard Keys will start for Franklin with Jim Egli, Al Burton, Joe Nappo, Ham Konefal, and Bill Ennis starting for Profy's.

BRIGHTENING YOUR BEDROOM

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

IT'S all right to be a copy cat when it comes to decorating. In fact, sometimes it's a good plan to look at model rooms designed by professionals and pick up some ideas for your own home.

If you really study decorator rooms you'll discover it's the little touches that make them outstanding.

Take bedrooms, for example. Some people think a bed, bureau, spread and drapes are all that's needed. It takes more than that, however. It takes some little touches. Four model bedrooms we saw recently illustrate this point nicely.

One was a roomful of roses. Feminine without being frilly, it featured matching bedspread and draperies patterned with filling circles with roses for centers. Made of sturdy, long-lasting jacquard weave cotton, the spread top in green on white was edged with a white snowball fringe. A dust ruffle in green carried out the scheme.

The little touches included a floral print hung over the bed, two graceful Provincial lamps, a vase of roses on the dressing table and a wooden valance at the window that was shaped to carry out the curved French Provincial line of the furniture.

Another bedroom, designed for the young man of the house, was trim and tailored with a cactus-strewn bedspread and drapery ensemble. Splattered linoleum provided a colorful and very practical floor covering. Of particular interest here was the headboard, easily made with knotty pine. Knotty pine wall covering and a corner bookcase set atop a cabinet carried out the motif. As a final touch, a wall lamp was attached to the side of the bookcase to provide light for reading in bed.

WHAT MAKES THIS BEDROOM ATTRACTIVE? It's a number of things, including the green and white color scheme set by the bedspread and draperies and the decorative cornice cut in graceful curves.

Mr. and Mrs. bedroom was done in a severely striking navy and white color scheme. The simple spread, patterned with lacey white squares on a navy ground, matched draperies that framed a window hung with sheer white curtains. A comfortable boudoir chair next to an occasional table provided a place for some midnight book-browsing. Next to the bed, a table with a pull-out shelf furnished a spot to put a snack or a cigarette and ash tray. Little touches like these made it a room where you could sleep or relax.

Cheerful and cozy, another bedroom in early American style featured a bay window attractively draped with three pairs of draperies—two pairs on the middle window, half a pair for each of the end windows. The draperies matched a washable cotton spread patterned with soft colored dois and trimmed with snowball fringe. A cozy, tea-table-and-Grandma's-comfortable-rocking-chair were near the windows. Two framed silhouettes were hung above the bed. On either side, mirrored reflectors and candles provided added wall decoration.

In all these rooms, decorating expenses were modest. The most expensive spread cost no more than ten dollars. What turned the trick, and made the rooms unusual were color coordination and those little touches!

ONE LOOK WILL TELL YOU that this is a boy's room. The knotty pine headboard, bookcases and cabinets have masculine charm. A cactus-strewn spread and drapery set seem just right to go with them.
